

Prof. Lvhua Guo

Professor Lvhua Gao is the Director of department of prosthodontics and oral implantology and the vice president of stomatology hospital of Guangzhou Medical University. He received his PhD in Dental Medicine in School of Stomatology at Wuhan University, P. R. China, and is a Certified Chief Physician, the Fellow in Academy of oral implantology in Stomatological Association of China, Fellow in Academy of prosthodontics and oral implantology in Guangdong provincial Stomatological Association.

With more than twenty years of professional experience he has gained in-depth knowledge on dental implants and surgical procedures, on prosthodontics such as cosmetic dentistry, complete dentures, precision attachment dentures and double crown dentures, and is very familiar with CAD/CAM, ceramic materials and restorations. Over the years, he has performed research works on the topics of digital workflow, ceramic dental materials, clinical application of implant supported magnetic retained overdentures for the mandibular edentulous patients, early clinical effects in upper anterior immediate Implant, the evaluation of inducement and reestablishment of occlusion of patients with severely worn dentition, the early clinical effects in upper anterior immediate implant, comparative study on clinical application of implant supported magnetic retained and quick telescopic overdentures, and the clinical effect of implant placement simultaneous nasal floor elevation.