Technical University of Darmstadt

Claudia Harzer, Ph.D., completed her doctoral studies at the University of Zurich, Switzerland. Since fall 2016, she is visiting professor for psychological assessment, evaluation, and intervention at the Technical University of Darmstadt, Germany. From 2006 to 2016 she worked as a teaching and research associate as well as visiting professor at universities in Germany, USA, and Switzerland. She has served on the boards of national and international societies (including the European Network of Positive Psychology as country representative for Switzerland and the German Psychological Society as representative of junior scientists in the Section Work, Organizational, and Business Psychology). Her main research interests are positive psychology in the context of work (especially studying character strengths and character strengths-related person-job fit, and strengths-related positive interventions), personality/individual differences, and assessment/test development. She has published in scientific journals (e.g., Frontiers in Psychology, Journal of Happiness Studies, Journal of Positive Psychology, Journal of Individual Differences, Human Performance), and delivered talks internationally on her research topics at academic conferences.
