

Denise Quinlan

New Zealand Institute of Wellbeing and Resilience

Dr Denise Quinlan is a director of the New Zealand Institute of Wellbeing and Resilience, a research fellow at the University of Otago and an adjunct Professor at the IE University, Madrid. She contributes to the development of wellbeing in education and the workplace through her research, programme development and face-to-face consulting and training. Her primary interest is the effective translation of research into practical, appropriate strategies for education and the workplace. Longstanding school collaborations and decades of work in management assessment and development give Denise a deep understanding of the contextual challenges in implementing wellbeing initiatives. She has a special interest in the use of strengths in different cultures and minority groups, and those whom strengths programmes have not benefitted.
