

Pninit Russo-Netzer

University of Haifa

Dr. Russo-Netzer is a researcher and lecturer at the department of Counseling and Human Development, University of Haifa. She is a logotherapist (Diplomate Clinician), the head of the academic training program for logotherapy at Tel-Aviv university, and the chairperson of the Logotherapy Association in Israel. Her main research and practice interests focus on meaning in life, positive psychology, spirituality and spiritual development, positive change and growth. Dr. Russo-Netzer serves as academic advisor and consultant to both academic and non-academic institutions, conducts seminars and workshops, and develops training programs and curricula for various organizations. She is the co-editor of the books Meaning in Positive and Existential Psychology (Springer; 2014), Clinical Perspectives on Meaning: Positive and Existential Psychotherapy (Springer, 2016) and Search for Meaning in the Israeli scene (Oxford University Press, forthcoming).